A Message from JoAnn McNabb, Piedmont District President

January is the month that we finally tend to slow down, and sometimes even the weather demands it. It is a month for planning, relaxing, and reflecting on the past year's events. February is when we all look forward for winter to be over. For me, it is time to look through all the seed catalogs that I have been saving for weeks. It is when I head out to the local greenhouses to purchase forced bulb plantings in anticipation of an early spring.

Then comes March when we all get together again for our spring district meeting. If you have not done so, please mark your calendar for Monday, March 16, 2020. Information about our design program can be found on the following page of this newsletter, and this looks like another fabulous program planned by Diane Burgess, Program Chairman, and Sally Harrison, Chairman of Hospitality.

Recognition of awards will be another highlight of our meeting. Awards Chairman Joanne Wallace has done a fabulous job of collecting, reviewing and organizing applications submitted by Piedmont clubs. Even if your club did not apply for an award this time around, please come out to congratulate those clubs that did. I had the privilege of being one of the nine judges who reviewed the applications, and I am in awe of the wonderful contributions our clubs are making to our communities.

Garden Clubs in Piedmont generated $501.27 in donations to the No-Bake, Bake Sale. Congratulations and many thanks to Amelia County, Chesapeake Bay, River Road, Salisbury, Sleepy Hollow, West Hanover, and Woodland Pond clubs for participating. These monies will be donated to Youth Scholarship projects.

With the new year just beginning, what better way to plan your garden club activities than to attend the upcoming VFGC Convention in Roanoke at the end of March.

There will be great speakers, wonderful vendor shopping, and an opportunity to see friends you haven't seen in a while. Full meeting details and registration forms are in the Winter Issue of the Old Dominion Gardener. If you cannot find it, send me an e-mail and I will send to you.

Come on out and support your district on March 16th! I look forward to seeing you there.

“What’s Your Purpose?”

Message from Pam Mann, Piedmont District Chaplain

It’s a new year, and a new day. While the garden is still at rest, it’s time, to figure out—what’s best for 2020? Not only for the garden, but for you, too. What are your goals? What is your purpose? What should you do? Like–a tiny seed drawn by the light of the sun. Purpose is not some dark secret that you must struggle to discover. Decide to allow it, and purpose will find you. Like–a gentle breeze you feel at the turn of a corner. It’s there.

Purpose is not so much a matter of what you do. It’s more about the way you feel while doing whatever it is you are doing. Those things you know without having to learn, connect you to purpose. Like – The way a person who loves gardening feels when digging, planting & planning.

Purpose is not merely what you think you might believe, but what you’re certain of. Like–In my heart I know, only God could make a rose. Purpose is the unconditional, limitless realm in your life that cannot be diminished by anything that happens. Whatever you undertake from the sense of that purpose brings great fulfillment and richness of life.

Does purpose elude you? Amelia Barr wrote: “Let us sit down before the Lord to consider our resources and see what we are not fit for. Then, simply give up wishing for it.” Let us decide honestly what we can do, and then do it with all our might. Give your best to each moment—and the blessing of purpose will come.

Environmental Justice
by Susan DelSordo, Legislative Affairs Chair

While researching the Virginia General Assembly website for new bills relating to the environment, I came across a Senate bill related to Environmental Justice.

What is Environmental Justice?

Environmental Justice is the fair treatment and meaningful involvement of all people, regardless of their race, color, sex, national origin or income with the respect to the development, implementation and enforcement.

Environmental justice emerged as a concept in the United States in the early 1980s; its proponents generally view the environment as encompassing "where we live, work, and play" (some definitions also include ‘pray’ and ‘learn’) and seek to redress inequitable distributions of environmental burdens (such as pollution, industrial facilities, and crime). Root causes of environmental injustices include "institutionalized racism; the co-modification of land, water, energy and air; unresponsive, unaccountable government policies and regulation; and lack of resources and power in affected communities."

Another Senate bill establishes the Virginia Council on Environmental Justice, which will consist of 24 members, to advise the Governor and provide recommendations intended to protect vulnerable communities from disproportionate impacts of pollution and provide them meaningful involvement in the decision-making process.

What to Do with All Those Plastic Bags?
by Sharon Lemke, Recycling and Litter Chair

We’ve all been there. You have the best intention to take a reusable shopping bag to the store. But you forget …and you end up using the store’s bags. So, you want to do the right thing and recycle those bags. First, separate plastic bags from your other plastic recyclables. Why? The bags can wrap around and jam recycling equipment or contaminate paper bales. Each community has a place to dispose of used plastic bags for recycling. I bring mine to the local Walmart.

You might be curious about how these bags are recycled and made into products. They are cleaned, baled then turned into flakes and pellets which are used to make a variety of products. Many recycled bags end up as composite lumber. This is a mix of plastic and wood scraps, such as sawdust and wood pallets. This type of lumber is long lasting and durable. The Trex Company and Advanced Environmental Recycling Technologies, Inc. are the main manufacturers of this type of lumber.

Some bags are melted down and used to create new batches of plastic bags. This process is more efficient than making them from scratch. A portion of your recycled bags may end up in the nanotechnology field. Scientists have developed a new way to create carbon nanotube membranes from recycled plastic bags, which may potentially be used for energy storage and biomedical innovations.

So now you don’t feel so bad, as those bags are being reborn into a useful product rather than bowing off some landfill site and ending up in the waterways.

What’s the bottom line? The best thing would be to bring your own reusable shopping bag to the store. If not, please recycle your bags in the proper place. Support those businesses that no longer use plastic bags and encourage your friends and neighbors to do the same.
“Only You Can Prevent Wildfires!”

Smokey Bear and Woodsy Owl Posters
by Pat Merson, Chair

Smokey Bear and Woodsy Owl posters were submitted by participating garden clubs by the January 3, 2020 deadline. The winning local posters by children in grades 1-5 were very creative and illustrated Smokey Bear’s message: “Only you can prevent wildfires”. Awards for the Smokey Bear and Woodsy Owl Poster Contest will be announced at the Piedmont District meeting in March. A special thank you goes to the garden clubs that participated in the poster contest: Rappahannock, Salisbury, Sleepy Hollow, and Wyndham.

Know Your Natives…
by Carolyn Shiflett

Before long the days will become warm and flowers will begin to emerge. I would like to encourage you to look for some new and different plants in the native variety.

The first one is Mayapple, podphyllum peltatum. This one can often be found on woodsy walks. It is a perennial in the barberry family. It likes moist, humus rich soil. The nodding white, rose colored, fragrant flowers in April and May resemble apple blossoms. The leaves are fragrant and umbrella-like. The early summer flowers are followed by fleshy fruit containing seeds. These green “apples” ripen to a golden color later in summer. The mayapple goes dormant in hot weather.

Fire Pink, silene virginica, is an interesting perennial native you might see in rocky, open woodlands. It grows in full sun and will also grow in rock crevices. The deep red flowers emerge in February through April and provide nectar for hummingbirds.

Another native to look for is Wild quinine, parthenium integrifolium, a member of the aster family. It grows in meadows and woodland edges in full sun. It has a long bloom season from June to September. The flowers are fuzzy white clusters. They are attractive landing pads for many predatory insects such as bees and wasps. The roots improve soil fertility and filter ground water.
Wonder City recently became a member of the Virginia Federation after an absence of 30+ years. We initially received a charter in 1958, a year after our club was organized. Although some of the information is sketchy, it seems that the club left the federation in the 1980’s.

Our club is a bit different in that we have ALWAYS met at night, so the composition of our members is different from some of the other clubs. We have a large number of professional women who are members. Our members are intensely interested in the environment --- and always have been. I think that both the VFGC and the Garden Club of Virginia are finding that younger members are more interested in environmental issues than in some other aspects of gardening.

Wonder City has 20 active members. The club has staged an annual plant sale for 58 years! This year’s event takes place on Sunday, May 9th at Weston Plantation in Hopewell. See announcement on p 3 of this newsletter.

We are thrilled to be a part of the Federation! We have three clubs in the City, and now all three of us are members of the Federation. We are forming a Council, albeit a small one. Clearly, the common membership in the Federation has fostered a synergy that did not exist before.

Sleepy Hollow Garden Club Creates Designs to Support University of Richmond Fundraiser
by Susan Gordon and Gail Harwood, Sleepy Hollow Garden Club

In early December, Sleepy Hollow Garden Club created designs for the home of Susan and John Gordan, one of five homes on a Holiday House Tour sponsored by the University of Richmond Chapel Guild. Funds raised were to support the UR Office of the Chaplaincy. Approximately 450 tickets were sold at $45.00 per ticket, resulting in about $20,000 before expenses.

Sleepy Hollow members were delighted to support this effort with Susan, who is a club member. Susan and John’s home was the oldest one on the tour. The house was built in 1927 in the Tudor Revival style, consistent with the Collegiate Gothic style of the University. As frequent visitors to auctions, estate sales, and antique shops, Susan and John have collected fine furnishings, many of which reflect English styles consistent with the character of the house. Susan’s background in art has given her a love for beautiful objects which has inspired, among other things, her collection of Chinese and Japanese porcelain. Their mutual love of the visual arts has resulted in a collection of paintings, heavily oriented toward landscapes, and prints from a variety of cultures.

The club’s objective for the tour event was to complement the classic beauty of the house, its furnishings and art with natural plant material. Many of the designs were large-scale. Participating designers included Nancy Anderson, Cindy Butler, Susan Gordon, Tatter Hartmann, Gail Harwood, and Maria Prince. Club members were pleased to hear that there were many favorable comments about how the designs enhanced the beauty of the home.

Edible Container Gardening

by Kathy Ward

During the cold winter months, we gardeners peruse our plant and seed catalogs as we plan for the new gardening year. This year why not consider growing your own veggies? Not enough sun? . . . no problem! Deer and other critters? . . . No problem! Poor soil? . . . NO problem! This year consider planting your edibles in containers!

There are many advantages to planting vegetables in containers. A container garden can be set up anywhere, even on your driveway, where there may be more sun. They can be placed on your deck or close to your house or covered with netting to deter the deer and squirrels. They are elevated and make gardening easier on our older joints. Containers also have the advantage of fewer weeds. All you need to get started is a bag of good soil, a trowel and the right sized container!

When it comes to size, the bigger the pot, the better. Large pots hold more soil and therefore hold water, so you won’t have to tend to them as often. Look for containers that are at least 10 inches wide and 12 inches deep. Larger flowerpots, half barrels, plastic-lined bushel baskets (with drainage holes) and window boxes. Even 5-gallon buckets from the hardware store work well.

Organic potting mixes will help your plants thrive and give you a better tasting veggie. It can either be purchased from a nursery/hardware store or you can make your own by blending equal parts of peat moss, potting soil, and vermiculite. Perlite or clean sand can be substituted for the vermiculite.

When choosing your plant or seed, be sure to look for vegetable varieties developed especially for containers. They are also disease-resistant and produce good yields. Any vegetable you would grow in the ground has special varieties developed for containers. A few examples are Bush Baby Cucumbers, Little Finger Carrots, Bright Lights Chard, and Glacier Tomatoes.

Resources: Savy Gardening (savygardening.com), Urban Farmer (ufseeds.com) and Burpee Seeds (burpee.com) which have many container vegetable varieties listed. The Harvest to Table website has extensive information on soil mixture, container sizing, planting time and more (https://harvesttotable.com/category/container-gardening/). Happy planting!
You get a bench! You get a bench! You get a bench!

The Cartersville Garden Club has completed its third TREX challenge and received a third bench, which was the second one to go to the Cumberland Public Library. The benches have been positioned in the back of the library, making a nice little reading and conversation area for library patrons. The first bench was donated to the Cartersville Volunteer Rescue Squad and sits prominently in front of that building.

We were lucky enough to have sat next to some members of the Violet Bank Garden Club at a luncheon and learned what they had been doing. We’ve been very successful enlisting our entire community to contribute soft plastic to our effort. It’s such a help to our environment and a wonderful cause for the entire area to participate in.

“What is this all about?”, you ask. The TREX Corporation allows communities and organizations to sign up for a six-month challenge, in October and April, to recycle 500 pounds of soft plastic in exchange for a bench provided by TREX.

The Cartersville Garden Club began their first challenge October 2018. We were able to achieve our goal through the help of a lot of contributors. What is meant by soft plastic? It’s plastic shopping bags, clean and dry food wrappers, any wrapping around appliances, electronic devices, deflated bubble wrap. The plastic needs to be clean and dry. We collect it, weigh it and then take it to our local Food Lion, who sends it to their distribution center where TREX picks it up. Food Lion has an arrangement with TREX and has been very supportive of our efforts. Once a month, we report our total weight to TREX.

Our next challenge begins in April of this year. That’s when we will re-enroll in the program and start reporting totals. In the meantime, we are barely able to contain the enthusiasm of our plastic donors, and will continue collecting, weighing and taking it to the store. We feel so good about what we’re doing for the oceans, our environment and our community.
